To describe trends in rates of reported Neisseria gonorrhoeae, Chlamydia trachomatis, and syphilis infections in the neonatal period (0-6 days of life) and during infancy (7-23 months of life) in Massachusetts, 1998-1999 and 2001-2002. Gender-specific annualized and linear time trends in N. gonorrhoeae, C. trachomatis, and syphilis rates were analyzed from 1998 to 2002. All reported cases of each condition in the state were examined. N. gonorrhoeae rates were similar in both groups (3.9 per 100,000 children 0-6 days of age in 1998-1999 and 3.4 in 2001-2002), whereas C. trachomatis rates were low in both groups (1.9 per 100,000 in 0-6 days, and 0.9 per 100,000 in 7-23 months) and syphilis rates were higher in the younger group (1.1 per 100,000 in 0-6 days and 5.2 per 100,000 in 7-23 months). From 2001 to 2002, a significant linear trend was observed in N. gonorrhoeae incidence in infants [incidence rate ratio (IRR) = 0.77, 95% confidence interval (CI): 0.73-0.84] but not f30f4ceada
