Category:Windows-only software Category:SolidWorks Category:1992 software Category:Free CAD software Category:Technical drawing editorsSunday, December 2, 2013 I'd been reading about a new app called Readmill for ages but I'd never downloaded it on my phone. It's free, and allows you to save your book for later from your computer and read it on your iPhone! It syncs between your PC and iPhone, and you can read it on your iPad or other e-reader. It was so easy to set up, and I'm so glad I finally got around to it. You get a generous amount of reading time for a couple of bucks, so I'm looking forward to savouring some YA before the holidays! I've had several conversations lately about my over-use of technology when it comes to my writing. My post-secrets of the author life took a back seat this week, but I wanted to think about it and make a point of not using technology to write. I'm a huge iPhone user (see the new "Apple Stores" box on my About Me page) and I write a lot on my iPad... with a notepad on the side. I'm a huge advocate for the iPad, and I think it can help a lot of people be more productive. However, lately, I've been using the iPad to write everything. I've been reading a lot of e-book mystery/suspense/romance/adventure novels as a distraction from writing! 3da54e8ca3
