Q: Is the Checkstyle rule BRACING allowed in the same Java file as the Declaration? Let us say I had a class containing an unexposed interface: `public interface MyInterface { List addAll(Collection collection); }` I would like to have Checkstyle warning about unexposed public methods (as I've learned this is a best practice). I tried: `package com.mycompany.myproject; public interface MyInterface { //Checkstyle - BRACEDUNUSED List addAll(Collection collection); public List myMethod(); }` However, Checkstyle produces a warning for the interface declaration: Warning: BRACEDUNUSED Should be removed. Do not use a '{' at line 2, column 33. Line 2, column 33. List addAll(Collection collection); ^ Suggested fix: BRACEDUNUSED Should be removed. Do not use a '{' at line 2, column 33. Line 2, column 33. Is that a bug? I wanted to avoid using { in my interface. Or am I doing something wrong? A: The { should be removed because the '{' is in a comment. From the documentation about Checkstyle: Marker An interface or class declaration, or package declaration. Can be used to define an empty interface, and should not be used for e.g. inheritance, etc. So what you actually wrote is a package declaration, not an interface declaration. The My Virtual Zoo The My Virtual Zoo Meet the people behind the animals Belle You'll find Belle in a spacious enclosure An avid reader of zoos and wildlife magazines, Belle has decided to make the career switch from human to better-known fauna. As you can see, Belle is a big fan of furry friends. She has a bit of a crush on Hercules and feels a little intimidated by some of the bigger critters like the buffalo. While she enjoys the company of all animals, she is particularly fond of tapirs. Her favorite story involves a tapir and a crocodile. Her favorite video game is Tap-Tap Revenge. Her favorite web site is Discover Life. She is a trained actress, and loves to act out skits for her companions. She enjoyed a summer as a guide at Discovery World (Canada) Zoo and even played an air guitar in the band. Sadly, Belle has a heart condition that affects her heart valves. She also has a tendency to get a little excited. As you can imagine, Belle enjoys reading zoos and wildlife magazines. She gets a big thrill out of discovering new facts about the animals and the zoo. She also enjoys visiting other zoos so she can see how other zoo animals get to enjoy enrichment. Belle's more than happy to play with all her friends, but these particular pals aren't always as friendly as she is. Let's just say she's been known to chase mice and crabs. Belle's best friends in real life include a very patient cat (which she can't stand) and a playful Goliath Bird-Eater Parrot named Elodie (who she adores). It's been almost four years since Belle's health began to fail. We are doing all we can to make sure she has the best quality of life. Belle's condition means that her breathing sometimes gets a little rough, so she doesn't get enough air. It has come to our attention that those with her condition might not be permitted to eat meat. Although she doesn't have a problem with meat in general, it's a concern for her health, and we are doing everything we can to offer the best quality of life for her. We encourage everyone to continue to eat meat if they choose to, and we are recommending that additional enrichment not be included in her feedings.
