Biggest Picture: In the culture war, the left is losing badly. And it's not just because conservatives win elections. The left loses big because they don't have a recognizable, compelling vision of the future. Instead of a coherent alternative to the right's vision of America, the left offers more of what's wrong with the right. There is a view held by liberals that they are different than conservatives. They are far more tolerant, more supportive of the arts, more democratic, and so on. But the passion of their beliefs doesn't match the passion of their convictions. They don't see America's deepest problems the way conservatives do, so they can't offer a clear alternative to conservatism. And because they don't offer a clear alternative, they are forced to distort conservatives and their ideas to attack them. Apparently, it has only been in existence for the last couple of years, but its spread is growing steadily. The reason for this is that it can very easily be installed and can very effectively "encrypt" your files and folders, demanding a ransom to decrypt them. This effectively makes the files behind those folders as inaccessible as the real owner of the files – they can make the files disappear if they so wish. Since the owner of the files is not to blame for the encryption, it is pretty much understandable that people get suspicious and blame the owner. Unfortunately, this is the case even when the files were stored on their own device, and not the cloud. If you are one of those unlucky people, do not despair – there is always a solution! We have put together this guide so that you can remove the files from your devices and hopefully reclaim your files without having to pay for the decryption. So, you can fully customize the look of this small tool to suit your preferences. In case that you use the program only for monitoring purposes, you can either remove the screen locking features, or set a schedule for regular wake ups, whether or not the screensaver is active. This way, you can set the computer on 24/7. That said, WinCaffeine offers several different configurations to fit most needs. You can, for instance, set off a wake up or check if the screen is locked or not. You can also set a schedule for regular wake ups, whether or not the screensaver is active. Also, you can load the screen lock back to the screensaver, forcing the computer to either go into sleep mode or turn itself on. You can set up a wake up interval of 0 (zero) so that your computer will be forced to stay awake even if you are physically gone. Also, you can set a destination folder to load images to. Lastly, WinCaffeine can be used by multiple users. You can set this up through the configuration. However, you can also make WinCaffeine an app that runs in the background of all users. Simply check the "Run this program as an service" option in the configuration. So, everything is fine and dandy. Except… …on my computer, it does not work. Whenever I right click on the executable file for WinCaffeine, I always get a pop-up error message saying the following: The application already installed in the current system.
