A: You have 1 invisible element with the ID config-dir in your page. Use JQuery to hide it. //Find element with id 'config-dir' var container = $("#config-dir"); //hide element container.hide(); If you want to simply hide and not empty the element, you can do this: //Find element with id 'config-dir' var container = $("#config-dir"); //hide element container.html(""); Here's an alternative JQuery approach that's similar to your code. $(function() { var x = $("#config-dir"); //hide element x.hide(); }); Q: WCF cannot resolve referenced assemblies I've configured my

WCF service as normal, but when I browse to it from my service test client I get the error: Could not find file 'C:\packages\MyAssembly.1.0.0\lib\MyAssembly.dll'. I have the correct references in my project (e.g. System.ServiceModel), when I browse to the WSDL URL I get this: Could not find file 'C:\packages\MyAssembly.1.0.0\lib\MyAssembly.wsdl'. I think it's looking in the wrong place. I'm using an updated WCF source control solution that's being built by another developer using MSBuild, and I don't have access to this version. As a workaround I have just renamed the project and brought this version back into the solution (originally it had been renamed).

What's the best way to get this sorted? A: The solution is to build a new Web application project and add a reference to that new Web application project in the WCF service project. , it does not appear that counsel filed a motion seeking the recusal of the presiding judge or the assignment of a new judge to hear the remaining issues. We further note that an evidentiary hearing was held in this matter, and Counsel failed to file a transcript with the court. Neb. Ct. R. §§ 2-109(D)(1)(f) (rev. 2014) and 2-122(2)(c) (rev. 2014) both require 3da54e8ca3
